

Prof. Dr. Dr. Thomas Schildhauer studied computer science at the Technische Universität Berlin (TU) and holds PhDs in the field of software marketing, information management and public health. As computer scientist, marketing expert, internet researcher he works as university professor for electronic business at the University of the Arts (UdK), Berlin. He is founding director and currently chairman of the board of trustees of the Institute of Electronic Business e.V. (IEB), the largest affiliated institute at the UdK. He also heads the Berlin Career College at the UdK, which bundles the further education activities of the UdK. As director of the Alexander von Humboldt Institute for Internet and Society, Prof. Schildhauer conducts research in particular on the topics of "Internet enabled innovation", "Digital Education" and "Digital Health". In this context, Prof. Schildhauer also co-founded the Digital Urban Center for Aging & Health (DUCAH). Since 2017 he has also been Principal Investigator of the BMBF-funded Weizenbaum Institute - The German Internet Institute. Prof. Schildhauer is a member of the supervisory and advisory board of several companies and has carried out hundreds of practice transfer projects in the fields of digital education, corporate foresight, digital innovation/transformation, digital health and strategy development. More at www.schildhauer.digital